Yes, unlike cheaper devices available skinpen is FDA cleared to be safe to use and actually started it's life treating scarring in hospitals. It's also FDA cleared for hygiene and doesn't pose a cross contamination risk which some other devices can do.

Is it the same as a dermaroller?

No, Dermarollers buckle and bend and drag through the skin causing damage and extra scarring, these are also more likely to risk cross contamination.

Skinpen stimulates the production of collagen and elastin resulting in an improvement in the skins texture and appearance which can reduce the appearance of stretch marks over time
